COMMENCEMENT 1967

Sunday, June 11
Spartan Stadium, East Lansing
The pageantry and color at commencement exercises reveal a record of academic achievement of the various individuals taking part in the exercises. The following brief description is given that the audience might more readily interpret such achievement.

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, met at Columbia University to draft a code which would serve to regulate the design of gowns and hoods indicating the various degrees as well as the colors to indicate the various faculties. This code has been adopted by most of the colleges and universities in America and its use has made identification of scholastic honors an immediate activity.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors are made of black worsted material and have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters may be made either of black silk or black wool and have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. The arm goes through a slit, giving the appearance of short sleeves for the master’s gown. Doctor’s gowns are made of black silk and are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

Historical associations of color have been continued to signify the various faculties. Art and letters can be recognized by the white, taken from the traditional white fur trimming of the Oxford and Cambridge Bachelor of Arts hoods. Red, long traditional of the church, indicates theology. The royal purple of the King’s court signifies law. The green of medicinal herbs immediately identifies a medical degree. Philosophy is signified by the color of wisdom and truth, blue. Because through research untold wealth has been released to the world, science is identified by golden yellow. Oxford pink indicates music and russet brown, the color of dress worn by ancient English foresters, indicates forestry.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the bachelors graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

Alma Mater — Traynor

M.S.U., we love thy shadows
When twilight silence falls,
Flushing deep and softly paling
O'er ivy-covered halls.
Beneath the pines we'll gather
To give our faith so true,
Sing our love for Alma Mater
And thy praises, M.S.U.

When from these scenes we wander
And twilight shadows fade,
Our mem'ry still will linger
Where light and shadows played.
In the evening oft we'll gather
And pledge our faith anew,
Sing our love for Alma Mater
And thy praises, M.S.U.

Michigan State University, one of the leading land-grant universities and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in affording liberal and practical education for its students in a broad range of human endeavors.

MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension and international programs.

Now in its 113th year, Michigan State has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the ten largest universities in the nation. It has approximately 3,000 staff members engaged in teaching, research and public service, 425 buildings, and approximately 5,000 acres of land of which 1,850 acres are in existing or planned campus development.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day—farming—MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. Michigan State now has the School for Advanced Graduate Studies and 13 colleges—Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts, Education, Engineering, Home Economics, Human Medicine, Justin S. Morrill, Natural Science, Social Science, Veterinary Medicine and the University College—which offer basic courses for all freshmen and sophomores. Nearly 200 areas of specialization are available to undergraduates; approximately 300 are offered for graduate students.

The Honors College, which enables superior students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. The Merit Scholarship Program, of which Michigan State University is a prominent sponsor, enrolled nearly 200 Merit Scholars in this year's freshman class. This figure represents more than seven percent of the nation's total of this unusually select group.

One of the newest of many innovations in higher education made by Michigan State University is its coeducational academic residence halls. Incorporation of classrooms and faculty offices with living, dining and recreational facilities has given these giant new dormitories a stimulating academic environment. Eight of these residence halls are now occupied and one more is under construction. Each of these halls is the center of curricular and noncurricular activities, creating a "college within a college" atmosphere.

The "small college within the larger university" concept was introduced at MSU by the establishment of the Justin S. Morrill College, which offers a limited enrollment liberal education program with an international emphasis. The college does not have departments as such, and attention is centered on quality teaching within small groups. In addition to an intensive program in foreign languages, the college requires sequences of study in the humanities, social science, natural science, a field of concentration, senior independent study, and electives.
Today, more than 38,000 students attend the University at East Lansing. About 80 percent are from Michigan, representing every section of the state. Students also come from every state in the nation and 80 foreign countries.

Looking to the future, Michigan State University is preparing for increasingly larger enrollments as the great number of children born after World War II reach college age. To meet this challenge, MSU is revising curriculums and developing new teaching techniques through its Educational Development Project.

In the land-grant tradition it pioneered, Michigan State University is concerned with research and service as well as teaching.

All colleges and the Agricultural Experiment Station are engaged in a wide range of research. Some 1,700 individual projects are in progress. The University's research tools include the giant Control Data 3600 Computer and a 50-million-volt cyclotron. Modern facilities include the following new buildings: Chemistry, biochemistry, psychology research, veterinary medicine, plant science research, and natural resources.

Through an agreement with the Atomic Energy Commission, MSU will become a national center for basic research on plants and their reactions to radiation. Involved is construction of a $2 million building, a staff of approximately 90 persons and an annual budget of approximately $1 million when the program is fully underway.

Benefits of the University are brought to every county in Michigan by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Continuing Education Service. Their programs, on and off campus, provide a wide range of technical information and formal course work for hundreds of thousands of Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 50,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

Michigan State University’s land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, Michigan State University maintains research and technical assistance projects at 18 educational institutions in Asia, Africa and Latin America. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

With more than a century of educational achievement behind it, Michigan State University continues to apply its academic and physical resources to the problems of today and the challenges of the future.
The flags in the semicircle grouping at the rear of the stage are those of the United Nations from which students are attending Michigan State University. They are displayed in the English alphabetical order of the countries represented. The United Nations Flag itself is displayed in the center of the semicircle. Not included in this list are the U. S. possessions: Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, and Virgin Islands. The arrangement from left to right is:

HONORARY DEGREES

Frederick Christian BeLEN

Since your graduation from Michigan State University two decades ago, you have distinguished yourself as a lawyer, administrator, and civil servant. During World War II you contributed notably to the establishment of security systems for our ports of embarkation and for the War Department's staff headquarters. Your energy and wisdom were further evidenced during your years as chief counsel and staff director of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee. Since 1961, when President Kennedy appointed you Assistant Postmaster General, your creative vision and bold experimentation in the operation of the world's largest civilian enterprise, the U.S. Post Office Department, have affected for the better the daily lives of our entire population. Your notable success in advancing efficiency and economy in postal operations was further recognized in 1964, when President Johnson appointed you Deputy Postmaster General. The effective use of destination codes, a concept for which you are largely responsible, is one of the most significant developments in postal service in this century. In recognition of your eminent career and the honor which you have brought to yourself, to this institution, and to your government, Michigan State University confers upon you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Christian Fred Beukema

Your achievements as an engineer and industrial executive have been extraordinary. Your rise from a young engineer in the Michigan Limestone Division of the United States Steel Corporation to your present position as Vice President of that corporation's Ore and Limestone Operations has demonstrated qualities of leadership in the true American tradition. Your executive talents have been further evidenced by your success as President of the Bradley Steamship Company and the Oliver Iron Mining Division. In all these endeavors you have contributed notably to industrial progress through your scientific knowledge, your exemplary energy, and your enlightened view of corporation management. As a member and chairman of the Michigan State University Alumni Advisory Council, and as a member of the Board of Trustees of the University Development Fund, you have served this institution with devotion and have kept faith with its highest ideals. For these and other achievements, the Centennial Award was conferred upon you in 1955, and the Distinguished Alumni Award in 1960. Today, in further recognition of your great contributions to the development of American industry and to the advancement of your Alma Mater, Michigan State University confers upon you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Walker L. Cisler

Your career as an engineer and business executive has been marked by eminent achievement. During your early years with the Public Service Electric and Gas Company of Newark, and as a military engineer and officer in Germany with the Office of Military Government in World War II, you acquired an outstanding reputation as an engineer and executive. Because of your energy and vision in the development of public utilities, you have advanced the welfare of our people and the progress of industry. Your intelligence, integrity and leadership have made you the chief executive officer of one of the country's major public utilities organizations, the Detroit Edison Company. In addition to your career as an industrial executive, you have devoted much time and enthusiasm to important civic projects in the Detroit area, and to the cause of higher education and good government in Michigan and the nation. In recognition of your outstanding contributions to the economic and civic welfare of your fellow citizens and to the advancement of the electric power industry, Michigan State University confers upon you the degree of Doctor of Laws.
HONORARY DEGREES

Everett C. Hughes

Your record of achievement as a teacher, editor and scholar has earned for you an international reputation in the field of the social sciences. You have brought to your work a gifted capacity for the penetrating study of human experience in many segments of modern society. Your fruitful research into the social life of the French Canadians and the patterns of their integration into Canadian society is but one of your distinguished studies enriching our knowledge of mankind. To your activities as a lecturer and editor, and your leadership in professional organizations and conferences, you have added outstanding service as an inspiring teacher at the University of Chicago, at Brandeis University, and at European and Asian institutions. As a creative teacher and scholar, you have recognized the traditional association between the social sciences and the humanities and have made this relationship more meaningful. Because of your unusual accomplishments, your sustained faith in the dignity of mankind, and your dedication to our understanding of human values in the modern world, Michigan State University confers upon you the degree of Doctor of Letters.

Philip Levine

As a physician and biologist, you have exhibited not only the deep insight of the scientist, but also the vision and compassion of the man dedicated to human welfare. As one of the world’s leaders in medical research, you have, through your discovery of the Rh factors of human blood, made life possible for thousands of children and have made blood transfusions safer for countless others in this and other countries. The use of blood types in medico-legal matters is only one of the many areas of research in which you have pioneered so successfully during your career at the Rockefeller Institute, at the Newark Beth Israel Hospital, as Director of the Ortho Research Foundation, and as a professor at Columbia University. By your intelligence, initiative and creative research you have brought a new life and new hope to many of your fellow men. In recognition of the contributions which you have made to scientific advancement and your humanity in devoting your labors unselfishly to man’s unending struggle against disease, Michigan State University confers upon you the degree of Doctor of Science.

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS
MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY, 1967

It is a pleasure for me to extend my best wishes as you complete your college education.

You are graduating into a society in which you will be warmly welcomed. Our country has never had so great a need for highly educated men and women. Never have young Americans moved from the college campus into a world offering so broad a range of opportunities for individual fulfillment and contribution to the welfare of humanity.

Your generation of students has been distinguished by its fresh and vigorous concern for the quality of American life and its commitment to American democracy. Perhaps the greatest opportunity awaiting you is the challenge to make this a life-long commitment.

Today, Americans from every walk of life are striving together to shape a society that can offer a meaningful and rewarding life to all its members. Never have so many of our countrymen been so deeply dedicated to eradicating the old evils of ignorance, poverty, and bigotry from every corner of the land.

Through your years of study, you have prepared yourselves for positions of leadership in this quest for a better America.

I congratulate you, and urge you to take full advantage of that opportunity.
