The pageantry and color at commencement exercises reveal a record of academic achievement of the various individuals taking part in the exercises. The following brief description is given so that the audience may more readily interpret such achievement.

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, met at Columbia University to draft a code which would serve to regulate the design of gowns and hoods indicating the various degrees as well as the colors to indicate the various faculties. This code has been adopted by most of the colleges and universities in America and its use has made identification of scholastic honors an immediate activity.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

Historical associations of color have been continued to signify the various faculties. Arts and letters can be recognized by the white, taken from the traditional white fur trimming of the Oxford and Cambridge Bachelor of Arts hoods. Red, long traditional of the church, indicates theology. The royal purple of the King's court signifies law. The green of medicinal herbs immediately identifies a medical degree. Philosophy is signified by the color of wisdom and truth, blue. Because through research untold wealth has been released to the world, science is identified by golden yellow. Oxford pink indicates music, and russet brown, the color of dress worn by ancient English foresters, indicates forestry.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the candidates graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

Michigan State University, one of the leading land-grant universities and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in affording liberal and practical education for its students in a broad range of human endeavor.

MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension and international programs.

Now in its 123rd year, Michigan State University has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the largest universities in the nation. It has more than 3,400 faculty engaged in teaching, research and public service, 386 campus buildings, and more than 5,100 acres of land of which 2,010 acres are in existing or planned campus development.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day — farming — MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. The University now has a Graduate School and 17 colleges — Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Justin S. Morrill, Lyman J. Briggs, Natural Science, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science, University College, Urban Development, and Veterinary Medicine. Some 200 programs of instruction are available to undergraduates; 76 departments offer graduate studies.

MSU is unique nationally in that the Colleges of Human Medicine, Osteopathic Medicine, and Veterinary Medicine are located on the single campus.

The Honors College, which enables superior undergraduate students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation’s finest young scholars. Michigan State University also is a prominent sponsor of the National Merit Scholarship Program, comprised of an unusually select group of scholars.

One of the many innovations in higher education made by Michigan State University is its system of academic-residence halls. Incorporation of classrooms and faculty offices with living, dining and recreational facilities has given these giant dormitories a stimulating academic environment. Each of these nine halls is the center of curricular and noncurricular activities, creating a “college within a college” atmosphere.

The concept of the “small college within the larger university” was introduced at MSU by the establishment of the Justin S. Morrill College, and was expanded by the establishment and opening of the James Madison College and the Lyman J. Briggs College. James Madison offers a curriculum for the study of public policy problems within the framework of the social sciences and related disciplines. Lyman Briggs makes available a liberal curriculum for students especially interested in science and mathematics.

Today, almost 44,000 students attend the University at East Lansing. About 85 percent are from Michigan; the remainder includes more than 1,200 foreign students from 86 countries.

In the land-grant tradition it pioneered, Michigan State University is concerned with research and service as well as teaching. All colleges and the Agricultural Experiment Station are engaged in a wide range of research. Approximately 3,000 individual projects are in process. The University's research tools include the Control Data 6500 computer, a cyclotron of the sector-focused type capable of accelerating protons to 50 MeV (60,000 miles per second), and the MSU Observatory which houses a 24-inch reflecting telescope, a computer and related equipment. Facilities are acquired and continually adapted to strengthen the research capabilities of the University.

Through an agreement with the Energy Research Development Administration, MSU has become a national center for basic research on plants and their reactions to radiation; involved is a $2 million building, a staff of approximately 90 persons and an annual budget of approximately $1 million.

Benefits of the University are brought to every county in Michigan by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Continuing Education Service. Their programs, on and off campus, provide a wide range of technical information and formal course work for hundreds of thousands of Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 50,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

In broadening the scope of educational opportunity, MSU is building on its long experience in continuing education to develop a Lifelong Education Program which will offer University resources to persons who are educationally or economically excluded from the traditional campus programs; to those who seek new skills or wish to update present skills; and to those who wish through education to make their leisure time more productive. The Program also will enable the University to cooperate with local communities in assessing, developing, and expanding their continuing education projects.

Michigan State University's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, Michigan State University maintains research and educational assistance projects on a world-wide basis. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

With more than a century of educational achievement behind it, Michigan State University continues to apply its academic and physical resources to the problems of today and the challenges of the future.

HONORARY DEGREES

John A. Meyers

Throughout a life of high achievement, whether as defensive halfback on the MSU football team or as Publisher of Sports Illustrated and Vice President of Time, Inc., you have demonstrated an adherence to the principles of good sportsmanship and a willingness to serve beyond the call of duty. In spite of your many business responsibilities you serve the youth of America as a Trustee of Pop Warner Junior League Football. Your membership on the Advisory Committee of the All-American Golf Association and the Advisory Board of the Women's Sport Foundation is evidence of your interest in and full support of amateur sports. A graduate of the School of Journalism and a member of the Executive Board of the Michigan State University Alumni Association, you were presented the MSU Distinguished Alumni of the Year Award in 1974 and the Communication Arts Outstanding Alumni Award in 1975. Your deep concern for the young was recognized when you received the Pop Warner Service to Youth Award. For your outstanding contributions to the sports and media fields, and for your dedication to the athletes of our country, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

John W. Porter

Your career has been an expression of your deep belief in the value of education for all. Your fine work in the Michigan Student Loan Program brought you to the attention of President Lyndon B. Johnson, who appointed you to the President's National Advisory Council on Insured Loans for Vocational Students. In 1969 you became Michigan State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the youngest person and first black to hold this position. As Superintendent you have shaped the K-12 educational programs of Michigan to high standards of responsibility and accountability and have won national recognition for your effective leadership. The Kettering Foundation asked you to be a member of its National Commission for the Reform of Secondary Education; President Richard M. Nixon named you to the President's Commission on the Financing of Postsecondary Education; President Gerald R. Ford appointed you to the National Commission on Manpower Policy; and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare made you a member of the National Advisory Council for Career Education. This University is proud to have granted you two graduate degrees and counts you among its most distinguished alumni. Now, in recognition of your dedication to equal opportunity and to reform in education, Michigan State University is pleased to award you the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.
Your career in the fine arts has won you international recognition. Your work is represented in such major museums as the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Whitney Museum of American Art, and the Art Institute of Chicago, our own Kresge Art Center, and graces many private collections. You have executed commissioned work in mosaic and stained glass that will long enhance American buildings, and you have participated in acclaimed group and one-man exhibitions throughout the world. You have an impressive record of gold medals and other awards. And, while you have won increasing recognition for your own achievement, you have also helped others to achieve. You have assisted young artists as a member of the staff of the New School for Social Research; as artist-in-residence and professor of painting at the University of Illinois; as visiting artist at Yale, the American Academy in Rome, and the Brooklyn Museum School; and as Distinguished Visiting Professor and artist-in-residence at Michigan State University. For your high accomplishment in the fine arts and for your service to young artists, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities.
