Grange and Farmers' Clubs.

The Michigan State Grange and the Michigan Association of Farmers' Clubs held their annual meetings in Lansing last week. Both meetings were largely attended and the annual reports of the secretaries show the organizations to be in a prosperous condition.

Wednesday morning President Snyder addressed the Association of Farmers' Clubs on the College and its work during the year. He stated that the last two years the College had been receiving a large number of visitors from both the east and west and had received praise from all who had visited it.

Mrs. Willard, the President of the Grange, was listened to with the greatest interest. She emphasized the fact that the College is not only a place for the education of young men but also an institution for women.

Farmers' Clubs on the College and the State level are doing a great deal of work. The usual meetings of the clubs are held on the first Thursday of the month and the College is supported, then gave an outline of the work done in the past year and what is to be expected in the coming term.

The State Board at its last meeting authorized the publication of an annual report of the College. The report will probably locate there in the fall term.

We would also call attention to the fact that the resources in the shops will be taxed during the next term even more severely than during the term just brought to a close; for, during the winter term the value of the agricultural course is given practice in the shops,—in addition to the regular mechanical students,—and we desire our patrons to know that we expect to have two hundred and fifty students in the shops during the coming term.

New Catalog of Students.

The State Board at its last meeting authorized the publication of an annual report of the College. The report has already begun work on it. The publication will be an important one for the College and will differ from previous publications in that it will include the names, addresses, and present occupations of all persons who have ever attended the College. Dr. Beal's catalog of former students is available in security statistics but the new work will entail an immense amount of labor in addition to what has been done.
The evening.

The Sun that has glowed like a furnace all day seems to have spent the last of its strength and is now turning its fiery glare to another sphere. The grey clouds move across the sky; the night winds have begun to blow, and the stars are appearing like gypsies. The men, outstretched on the grass, smoke and talk of the day's work. Down by the creek the trees are shadowy, and the voices, borne on the current, echo back from far up the valley.

Jewell '62 and A. C. Bird '83 were in the midst of their three weeks of vacation. On Monday they met and appointed Dr. A. C. Bird as the new head of the Agricultural College. From the date of his appointment to this department (nearly five years ago) Mr. Hicks had filled an office involving the performance of important duties, and had acquitted himself in such a way as to receive universal approval for his scientific work and for his most valuable services to the department. Among these services of our association with him Mr. Hicks deservedly won the personal esteem and regard of all with whom he was brought in contact, and especially of those who knew him best.

"We deplore his loss to ourselves as a friend and co-worker and to the public service as a most capable, efficient and indefatigable officer, and to his bereaved family in this time of their affliction our sincere and heartfelt sympathy.

Dr. True said: "I am instructed by the committee to move the adoption of this expression of our regret and sympathy, and also that an appropriate copy be sent to the family of Mr. Hicks and to the paper published at the Michigan Agricultural College, of which institution Mr. Hicks was a graduate. I would be glad, Mr. Chairman, to make some slight expression of my own personal feelings on this occasion, but I feel wholly unable to do so. I enjoyed the friendship of Mr. Hicks in some relations outside of the department work, and was associated with him in some duties not connected with the regular routine of the departmental work. In that way I came to know him well, and to appreciate him."

Dr. Ervin F. Smith also spoke and Mr. M. G. Koinze, for himself and three or four others who had been students under Mr. Hicks at the Michigan Agricultural College, spoke of Mr. Hicks' thorough, patient and painstaking work as an instructor, and expressed their sense of the loss of a personal friend.
