Not Cut Out for a Farmer.

The appointment of L. Whitney Watkins '93, of Manchester, and Holliday P. Marx, of the class of '99, to membership on the State Board of Agriculture was confirmed by the Senate last week. We hope to be able to give portraits and biographical sketches of the two new members on their next meeting. Their first meeting on the Board will be Tuesday evening, (Wednesday) at the College.

M. A. C. is getting her full share of the Russian plague. All classes have been more or less broken up during the past two weeks on account of the illness of students and some have been entirely suspended for several days at a time. The college is closed for the illness of instructors. Prof. and Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Gunson, Vesta Woodbury, Margery Collins, Lucy Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Lord have been confined for a week, or two for weeks. Dr. Kelch, Mrs. Kelch, Mr. and Mrs. Pettig, Hugh Baker and Edna Deyarnond are among the more recent victims of the plague.

The Inauguration of Jerusalem.

Dr. R. G. Moulton, of Chicago, delighted a College audience Sunday afternoon by giving a lecture on Davids' Inauguration of Jerusalem. He gave a description of the procession that carried the Ark of the Covenant up into the city, recounted the events of the inauguration, and recited the five anthems that made part of the day's program—all in such a vivid and pleasing manner that it seemed as though we were listening to the account of some latter-day pageant. In his closing remarks the speaker said he considered David the bravest man in all history; whether sacred or secular, because in him alone do we find united, both the spirit of greatness, the spirit of song, and that of action. David was a great warrior and a great statesman—the founder of Israel's political system as well as the foundation poet of Israel and her greatest artist.

Of Interest to College People.

Lansing, January 20, 1899.

My dear President Snyder:

Permit me to express, in behalf of myself and congregation, our sincere and cordial sympathy in the loss of our building and of the gratitude we feel for all the timely and generous aid of the faculty and students of the Michigan Agricultural College. At the present time, I should be obliged if you would convey this expression to students and faculty.

For the new and tasty calendar just received I thank you.

I feel impelled to thank you for your service in securing the presence of Mr. T. W. Veeder, of the University, for the commencement address. He is a noble and inspiring speaker. I heard him with pleasure, and I am happy to assure you that he was in excellent condition.

Cordially yours,

ENRINE BOURNEK ALLEN.
The M. A. C. Record.

The M. A. C. Record is a weekly publication from the Michigan Agricultural College. This issue is dated January 24, 1899, and contains various articles and notices related to the college and the surrounding community. The text includes information about club meetings, a speech by Dr. W. J. Beal, and an article about Senator Morrill, the Father of the New Education. The content reflects the educational and social climate of the late 19th century in the United States.

of such places of instruction has been so manifest that states, societies, and large individuals have attempted to supply it, though necessarily in a somewhat embittered measure. The "plentiful lack" of funds has retarded their maturity and usefulness; but there are some examples, like that of Michigan, liberally supported by the State, in the full tide of successful experiment.

But if this bill shall pass, the institutions of the character required by its own experience, annals wisdom but at a very great expense. For him who would advance, there is one man only,

—Cleveland Leader.
