Meeting of the State Board.

The September meeting of the State Board of Regents was held at the St. Clare Hotel, Detroit, the 25th and 26th inst., with all the members being present except the governor. The following are extracts from President Snyder's report to the Board:

"Owing to our changed method of registering and classifying students this work has passed off much more smoothly than heretofore. In a very short time all the classes were organized and the work was in progress. Everything gives promise for a most successful year.

"I believe it would be wise for the Board to settle on some policy with reference to at least the next two years, and in order that the decision may come before you, I recommend that if our income will warrant it, and I believe it will, we proceed to have a building erected to our new heating system, erect a bath house and bacteriological laboratory."

The Board approved the request, and the following year they were to take the plans and specifications to the Board of Regents.

"Resolved, That the committee on Buildings and College Property be instructed to secure preliminary plans for the buildings for the mechanical department, physical laboratory and book stack.

"Resolved, That the Committee on the Upper Peninsula and South Haven Experiment Stations for the current fiscal year was fixed at $3,000. This was without comparison the most generous appropriation ever to be paid from the ten-cent mill tax appropriation.

"The Board approved the request to secure the boiler house from the Lansing Board of Education.

"The sum of $42,000 from the school district of the School Board was referred to the farm department for the current six months.

"The Board of Regents instructed to secure preliminary plans and specifications for the Lansing High School when the work was in progress.

Outlines of Roman History.

The author of a new Roman history necessarily seldom has original facts or episodes to present. Novelty of selection among his facts, novelty in interpreting them and in the manner and method of presentation are the respect wherein his work may differ from those which have preceded it. Dr. Gr. M. B. Buck's text has the same arrangement of chapters and periods common to histories of the Roman people prepared for high school and college students. It seems to present also much the same sort of facts and occurrences in such text-books. A lively, graphic literary style, however, is a distinctive merit contributed by the author. The book introduces us to the "Land and the People." Of the people the three political periods of their development are properly entitled the periods of the "Roman Kingdom," the "Roman Republic," and "Roman Empire." An unusual exhibition from a Roman history are the "Gifts of Rome to Civilization" including the church, language, political organization and law. An abundance of illustrations are given—many new ones not customarily found in text-books of this sort. A particularly commendable feature of the work is the profusion of maps furnished. Not stopping to comment on the claim of the prefect that "there are maps to show the location of every place mentioned in the text" we particularly praise the fine series of "progressive maps," which show the growth of the Roman domain from the beginning of the republic to the overthrow of the empire by the Germans. The book has 300 pages of reading matter, is adequately indexed, has references to specific portions of larger works at the end of each chapter and has a classified list of books upon Roman history and of special topics in Roman history.
