We, the women students of Michigan State College, have organized ourselves into an association which is called Associated Women Students. We have voted upon regulations which we agree shall be administered in this coming year with the cooperation and approval of the Dean of Women, by a Council and Judiciary Board, as elected from our members.

The purpose of our organization is to help establish and maintain high standards of conduct, both social and moral, at Michigan State College. We will strive to attain that purpose by conducting ourselves in such a manner that we can be truly willing to have all girls adopt and imitate our ways.
Greetings from ---
--- the Dean of Women

We in the office of the Dean of Women have been busy this summer with preparations for these Fall days when new students and upper class students would again come to Michigan State College campus. Now that you are actually here, we say "Welcome" to each of you. I hope you have had a good summer and that you are coming with plans and enthusiasm for the work ahead of you.

To the new students I extend an especial greeting. We of Michigan State are glad to have you at this college with its traditions of democracy, friendly cooperation, and loyalty to high ideals which have been built up by previous generations of students. We believe you also will find here real opportunities for academic training and happiness.

There will, undoubtedly, be new and sometimes difficult decisions to make. Remember that the staff in this office is an advisory group maintained for your benefit. Please come in often and consult with us as friends who are sincerely interested in each of you. The office is busy but we shall be glad for the opportunity to become acquainted with you.
Hello, girls, we’re glad to find so many new members of A. W. S. on campus this year. There is a place for all of you in our active life here, and we hope you will find your place soon. The students at Michigan State College will do their best to make this year, and the ones to follow, memorable years in your life.

Upon registration, every woman student becomes a member of the Associated Women Students organization, the governing body of M. S. C. undergraduate women. All campus organizations in which women students participate are represented in A. W. S. Through A. W. S. you will learn what activities you may participate in, what traditions we have, and what honors you may receive.

The A. W. S. Judiciary Board enforces the rules you are to live under—rules that have been voted on by previous students. Through many years these rules have been developed to meet the needs of the women on campus.

A. W. S. is interested in every one of you. If you would like to help in our work, or if we can help you in any way, let us know. A. W. S. is your governing organization.

Point Limitation System
For Women

This system has been devised to relieve a few of the heavily burdened individuals and to offer to others the opportunity to develop leadership while on campus. It has been found that when any of us attempt too many activities, we cannot do justice to them all. The points below are based on the time and responsibility involved in the various activities. The provisions of the system are carried out by a Point Limitations Board which is composed of members from women's organizations on campus. Any upper-classman is not allowed to carry more than fifty points. A freshman is not allowed to carry more than twenty points. If any woman is offered the opportunity to carry an additional activity or office which for a limited time will mean that her points exceed her limit, she must consult the Point Limitations Board before accepting the new responsibility.

Letters...
Back Home
Dear Sally Jean:

'Scuse me for not writing sooner, but I've been rushed to death ever since I arrived here. State is even more wonderful than I dreamed, and I feel so much at home already.

My room is just darling, Sally, and the girls in the dorm are super-swell! My "roomy" is especially nice—I know you'll love her, too.

Freshman Week was heaps of fun. Here are some of the highlights, Sally Jean: Meeting my adviser the first day and also my "big sister" (who wrote me those chatty letters all summer); "exchanging" parties with other dorms (boys, too); strutting around in my new pajamas at our p. j. party here; hearing President Hannah at one of our class convocations; learning the Alma Mater song, "M. S. C. Shadows," and the fight song.

I was so excited, too, when I classified for my first college classes, and danced with some very smooth men at the mixer Friday night, and rode down to the Ann Arbor game on a special State train. I really expanded my lungs cheering in the midst of all those green freshman pots, but I was very prim and ladylike at the introductory sorority teas Sunday.

Oh, Sally, I could go on and on forever, but I have a "coke" date with an ultra-handsome Hi, Sally Jean!

This is a belated note to tell you that I was so glad you could spend that week-end with me last month. We did have fun at that “change-about” radio party, didn’t we?

I’m busy as usual studying, selling Spartans (our college magazine, you know), attending Y meetings, and playing field hockey. Last weekend after the football game a crowd of us had a steak roast, and it was heavenly singing M. S. C. songs around the fire.

Speaking of fun, did I tell you about the sophomore-freshman games and the barbecue at night? There was a dance, too, and I met so many people I knew. State is the friendliest school!

I’m in all the fore-mentioned activities as a result of my trip to the Coed Carnival with my Counselor. Honestly, Sally Jean, the organization booths were all so cute and ingenious, and the cider and “dogs” were delicious!

Tonight I’m going to my first college lecture with Jim. Edwards Weeks is the speaker, and I know he'll be interesting.

Do write soon, Sally, and just think, before long I'll be home for Thanksgiving and then Christmas!

Love,

JOYCE.

February 15

Dearest Sally Jean:

Here I am in the middle of my second term at State ... how fast the time has flown! This term is going to be the busiest yet, what with formal dances and basketball games and such.

Guess what! I already have a date for the J-Hop (I do hope they give us as darling favors as those "newsy" compacts last year)! And the soph prom and interfrat ball were thrilling, too —see what a whirl I'm in!

I'm also hoping to help on the staff of this term's play in Fairchild theater. They have one every term, you see, and in the spring it's a Shakespearian drama. College is just one continual state of excitement!

Gotta scurry over to the library now and do some much needed outside reading.

Lovingly,

JOYCE.
Dear Sally Jean:

Your letter has been collecting dust for ever so long, but I have thought about you—lots.

I’ve been wanting to tell you all about the May Morning Sing, which was held at Beaumont Tower May 1. The night before the two women’s honor societies, Mortar Board and Tower Guard, serenaded the dorm with their dark gowns and lighted candles. It was so breathtaking, and Sally Jean, my next door neighbor, was tapped into Tower Guard. We were all so happy for her!

The campus is so fresh and green now. Every Tuesday “Roomy” and I see our best men march in the military parades. They look so proud, and so are we (of them).

There are so many things to do in the spring here. Hiking, canoeing, tennis, riding, golf—oh, it’s all so wonderful! The fraternity and sorority sings will be held in the bandshell in a few weeks, and I’ve heard they’re beautiful.

Time for dinner, so I’ll stop now. But I promise you that I’ll write much, much sooner next time.

JOYCE.
June 10

Dear Sally Jean:

Oh, I’m so happy that you’re coming to State next year! You’ll love it, I know!

Tonight is annual Lantern Night, and I can hardly wait for it to arrive. All the upperclassmen carry lighted lanterns from the gym to the bandshell where each class passes them down to the next. It must be a lovely sight!

Senior Week is actually here, with its senior play, water carnival, commencement, and graduation parade. How fast my first year at M. S. C. has gone!

I sort of hate to say goodbye to this new home of mine for even a few months, but you’ll be here in the fall to enjoy it with me, won’t you?

All my love,

JOYCE.
There's Lots To Do...
There's a niche for you—and maybe two or three—in activities at Michigan State College.

Some M.S.C. organizations are just for fun, some for development and service, and some in recognition of achievements. Many you can just join, and for others you'll need certain qualifications.

Here are some samples from this year's menu:

Women's Athletic Association, Green Splash, M.S.C. Outing Club, for you who like activities really active.

Student Club, to provide you with inexpensive, creative entertainment varying from picnics to dances every Friday night.

Y.W.C.A., Spartan Women's League, Student Christian Union, for girl students who have ideas to develop. Home Economics Club, International Relations Club, and a host of others bound up with your favorite courses.

Publications if you like the pounding of a typewriter and have a nose for news.

A Cappella Choir, or the big chorus, if music is your meat.

Studio Theater, if you like to dabble in drama.

And for a feather in your cap, start working toward the professional and honorary groups which qualified students are invited to join.
Early in the fall, many of these organizations will present to you a cross section of their programs in a panorama of a Day in a Coeds’ life. Until then, shop around.

If sports are your meat, and you were the champion bowler or baseball player or volleyball player in high school, then you will feel right at home in W. A. A., that is, Women’s Athletic Association. All year long W. A. A. follows the season, and the girls take part in volleyball, bowling, basketball, swimming, dancing, fencing, baseball, tennis, golf, and archery. And at the end of the year, they finish off with a big spring picnic. And what’s best of all, anyone may belong to W. A. A. All you have to do is to like sports and come out for them.

If you live at home, either in Lansing or East Lansing or in some neighboring town, the Town Girls’ Club is the place for you. This recently organized group aims to promote a friendlier feeling among town girls and to help them to adjust to college life when they do not live on the campus. They have a special room all their own, too, on the fourth floor of the Union building. They can go there and study, relax or freshen up, whichever they’re in the mood for. If you’re a town girl, don’t bemoan the fact that you’ll be left out of college life. That’s what the Town Girls’ Club is for—to see that you aren’t left out of anything.
College Clothes Are Fun
So over and over again you've told the family purse-holder and the-men-you're-leaving-behind-you that it's an education you crave from Michigan State College? We believe you. In fact, so wholeheartedly do we believe that it is knowledge for which Freshmen coeds come to college that we hanker to initiate you into all its vital branches at once. Following is a sampling of your most important courses, the ones you should aim for an "A" in.

LOGIC: The major premise: It's not what you know but whom you know. Inevitable corollary: One would do well to know the right people. To do that you've got to look worth knowing, so your first home-work should be "mind your appearance."

FRESHMAN ORIENTATION: Your four years at college can be a gradual descent into Avernus (freshman, look this up) or a persevering climb to greater maturity, character and leadership ability (you know what we mean); it's up to you. To get started upward in your four college years you should know the essential do's and don'ts of college dress and etiquette; you should be so confident of what to do and how to dress that you can forget it yourself. For instance, you ought to know that:

The answer to rambunctious freshman mixers is fairly cool clothes and shoes that leave your feet most unconscious.

Receptions call for good but simple togs, a silk crepe with social significance, or a becoming wool.

Visiting the library and taking freshman tests demand that you haul out your wool or tweed skirt, odd jacket, cotton shirt, and saddles. Or if it's sweltering hot (first weeks always fool us), you'll be able to wear summer duds, perhaps that dark cotton sheer you were smart enough not to pack away.

HOME ECONOMICS: You may not be a Home Economics major (three to one you are, though) but we all have to memorize a few Home Ec principles. F'reinstance:

1. A slip straggling under your skirt is a cardinal error, and even Gertrude Steins aren't excused therefore. So, if your skirts are short (warning—watch the college mode for fall), make your slips correspondingly short.

2. Full skirts aren't as subject to sit-itis as straight ones, but both types thrive on occasional pressings, as do dresses, etc., but the ironing board won't be your chief love at college.

3. We wouldn't dare suggest that you clean your saddles, moccasins, and other species of flatties till they're actually white, but we do hint at an occasional session with the shoe-cleaning fluid.
4. Clean, press, and repair last fall’s clothes; it’s not at all necessary to get new clothes for college. The dress that hasn’t worn out after four years in Senior High will be brand spanking new to your college friends.

5. Simplicity is the keynote in campus dress. Plain neck lines are best, as we wear gobs of scarves, and amusing costume jewelry. White collars over sweaters also make a neat effect.

ANCIENT HISTORY: This includes the study of traditions and your chief assignment will be to: Wear stockings Fall and Winter terms, even under your bright anklets. This has a two-fold purpose; first, it pleases the Dean of Women and your profs, and more important, it makes our legs appear half-way decent. (Maybe we’ll even be wearing cotton ones this year, but at least they’ll be warm—that’s some consolation. However, bare legs can be exposed during Spring term and in actual sports participation.

Wear below-waist-length coats over riding pants.

Don shorts, culottes, slacks and ski-pants only for sports; on campus they must be covered by a full-length coat.

Wear a knock-about felt hat or go bare-headed, just as fancy or your psyche moves you. Skirts, sweaters, and flat shoes comprise the traditional campus costume, a costume that has infinite possibilities and variation.
NEVER OVERDRESS: “Athletics” means football to M. S. C. coeds. Four times during fall term we all go to Macklin Field and exude pride for Bachman’s boys. For home games we cheer in casual campus-wear, but when we follow our eleven to rival stadiums we splurge a bit. Thus, the Michigan game is apt to mean fairly high-heeled shoes, your three-piece suit, and a really snappy hat. Good-looking wool frocks with top coats, or tailored two-piecers are also smart.

Phys Ed courses usually have regulation suits, so you won’t have to worry on this score.

MODERN GREEKS: You guessed it—rushing! This course is not important to everyone, but for those of you who decide to take in some rushing parties, “what to wear” will loom importantly. The answer is, wear what makes you look up-to-date but not flashy. Which means hat, gloves, and purse, maybe with steaming your black velvet or colored velveteen with the fetching lace collar and cuffs; or perhaps it means donning your wool best-looker. Avoid over-elaborate dress which buries the fact that you have poise and shining character.

A couple of tips to help the good impression we know you’ll make: If you don’t smoke, don’t be embarrasses and don’t be scornful. A simple “Not now” or “Thank you, no,” serves better.
Second, it's an invaluable asset if you can carry on an intelligent conversation after the preliminary cross-examination and chit-chat, but don't do all the carrying; listen, too.

Again, one good-looking (but not sensational) outfit, complete with hat, gloves, and purse, will see you through a strenuous rushing season. For the preference dinner, you'll want either a dinner dress or your "strictly formal" with its matching jacket or bolero. Interesting costumes may also be composed of evening skirts with demurish blouses or sophisticated sweaters.

ETHICS: Sunday church will also find you in the outfit that took you to rushing teas.

MODERN DRAMA: Yum . . . formal parties . . . big name bands . . . luscious four-course dinner . . . a made for you evening gown . . . fellows disguised by tuxes . . . blind dates . . . exciting new men . . . powdering your roommate's back . . . borrowing and lending everything you own . . . surely college social life is modern drama, especially winter term.

For the gala occasions you'll be your most feminine and appealing self in a creation dreamed up just for you . . . Maybe it will be silk, maybe velvet, brocade, taffeta or silk jersey . . . If you're the tall, languorous type, play up your charms with sleek satin; but the best cue for freshmen is to emphasize the naive and sweetly youthful line—a touch of ruffles, ribbon, or rosebuds. Black velvet evening wraps, softened by white bunny fur on hood or collar remain the heavy favorite, but we suggest you look into the long wool coats before investing. We noticed two especially impressive numbers, one red with scintillating gold paillettes sprinkled along the shoulder line and down the front, the other a collarless beige. Also noteworthy, but not necessary, for evening are fur coats, capes, and quilted taffeta wraps.

A few daring people wear elbow length kid evening gloves with formals, but the angora mittens you spent the summer knitting will be quite as perfect, and much less over-awing to the men.

But college social life isn’t all glamorous J-Hops and Senior Balls, Soph Proms and Frosh Frolics; you’ll find just as exciting a part in Modern Drama. Your “good” dress—perhaps a princess style silk crepe in your most becoming color or your “fetchingest” wool—will be your choice for these dates. If it’s a day-time date where you see how long you can dawdle over one coke, you’ll wear the usual skirt and sweater combination; the same goes for library dates.

And so it goes... We could hint that snuggly Dr. Denton pajamas are coed favorites... that a housecoat of some description is a “must.” that you’ll never be sorry for pair on pair of vivid anklets... but by now you don’t need this pony. For by now you’ve figured out the es-sense of college clothes' smartness: Dress simply, suit the occasion, and don't dress beyond your means. The girl with one carefully filled clothes grip can look as smart as the girl who blows in with twelve trunks; it's just a matter of selection.
