"THE FAIR COED." by George Ade is to be this year's Union Opera production. Faculty consent to give another opera or musical revue was granted the Union last Friday as final action upon the request made early in the term. While the delay in securing permission to give an opera has prevented the putting out of one of the pieces which were locally produced still the Board is not at all dismayed over the prospect and the unanimous decision in favor of Ade's "Fair Coed," upon which work can be begun at once, is an indication of the Boards determination to put over just as big a success as last year's "Campus Days." The managing board which is already getting the machinery under way is: business manager, Percy Rice '22, Otter Lake; publicity director, John D. Walker '22, South Byron, N. Y.; stage manager, Don J. M. Gray '22, Moline; program, James R. Wellman '22, Port Huron; electrician, C. W. Gustafson '22, Ishpeming; assistant director, Hugh H. Johnson '23, Detroit.

GOVERNOR ALEX J. GOOCH and members of the state military staff reviewed the Michigan Agricultural College military units at the annual fall military field day held on the college drill field at 3 o'clock Wednesday, Nov. 30. Infantry, cavalry and artillery units passed in review, the organization including the military band. Penclope, one of the greatest jumping horses in the army was one of the attractions of the day. Cavalry stunts featured on the program, these events including a game of mounted push ball, fire jumping and wrestling. Major P. G. Wrightson, commandant, was in charge of the review.

"THE BATTLE OF THE PROFS" is the way the debate between Prof. R. B. Weaver of the English department and Prof. J. W. Milne, new debate coach, which took place Wednesday night in the Engineering Lecture room, was placarded. The debate, which was on the Disarmament question was a part of the initiation of the two faculty men into active membership in Pi Kappa Delta, honorary forensic fraternity and was a no decision affair. Prof. Weaver is a former University of Chicago debater, while Prof. Milne represented Michigan State College during the past season on college and university teams to Ames and Purdue, for the annual tri-state debates.

E. W. RANNEY '00, of Greenville, President of the M. A. C. Association is to be the M. A. C. speaker at a banquet being tendered Lansing football players who have made good during the past season on college and university teams, by Lansing business men. The dinner is being given Saturday night, Dec. 3 at the Lansing Country Club.

A SMALL FIRE broke out early Monday morning at the home of Prof. G. W. Holbs '10, on Grove Street causing approximately $500 damage. For some reason or other the East Lansing department could not be aroused and the Lansing department truck sent to give assistance became enmired on Fern street and was unable to reach the blaze. In the meantime energetic neighbors organized an efficient bucket brigade that saved the house.

PRICE LISTS of the various sizes of hardwood and coniferous nursery stock in the college nursery are ready for distribution this week. No marked changes in prices are noted, but those for the smaller sizes of stock have been slightly reduced.

Dr. Edward T. Devine, prominent social economist of New York City will appear on the College Liberal Arts program at the Gymnasium Dec. 5. Dr. Devine will deliver his lecture on "Problems of the Pacific and Disarmament." Dr. Devine has spent a great deal of time working with Herbert Hoover on solution of national social and economic problems. He has traveled very widely and is unquestionably qualified to discuss the disarmament question. He spends the major portion of his time traveling and lecturing.

DEVILLO D. WOOD '11, CONSERVATOR OF FORESTS and Director of Agriculture for the British North Borneo Co. of London, England, spoke before the Forestry Club at their meeting last Tuesday evening on tropical forests and the forest growth and forestry practice in the Island of Borneo. Wood, who has been in North Borneo for the past six years is on an eight months' leave and visiting his parents in Lansing.

"GREEN STOCKINGS," a play by A. E. W. Mason, will be given Monday evening, Dec. 12 in the People's Church, by the Dramatic Club and Drama League Players. The proceeds are to help finance the trips of the debating teams to Ames and Purdue, for the annual tri-state debates.

Vol. XXVII. No. 10
East Lansing, December 2, 1921

Mr. Marlon H. Day, Home Secretary of Canton Christian College, Canton, China, visited Michigan Agricultural College early in the week. His pictures of the Chinese college campus and his accounts of the work the institution is doing were most interesting. Canton Christian College is practically the only independent and nonsectarian educational institution in south China and receives its financial support from many sources including several of the alumni bodies of American colleges and universities. Paul K. Fu '14, is an instructor in Canton Christian College working with the director of agricultural work there.
VIEWS AND COMMENT

We hear much of the traditions of famous universities, but if we look into them we commonly find that they concern men, men who have stamped their personalities, who have given of their generous natures, who have colored the intellectual atmosphere about them. And men who are big and strong enough to do that are as likely to be found in the modest as in the imposing environment.

—President Warren G. Harding.

III. A. Q. F. N.

“One of the most impressive things in American education during the past three years,” says the Harvard Alumni Bulletin in its issue of November 17, “has been the series of far-reaching, and for the most part successful, endowment campaigns. It is probably no exaggeration to say that at least two-thirds of the endowed colleges of the country have been conducting ‘drives’ or one sort of another during the triennium which has intervened since the armistice was signed. Certain it is, at any rate, that more money has been raised for educational purposes during these thirty-six months than in any previous period of equal duration.

“To whom should the credit for this remarkable achievement be awarded? It belongs almost wholly, one might say, to the alumni of the colleges concerned. The public gave something, to be sure; but it was the graduates who everywhere carried through the work of organization and it was they who everywhere dug down into their own pockets for the many millions involved. Without this enthusiastic display of alumni loyalty most American colleges would be in a sorry financial plight today. We have demonstrated to the rest of the world the value of the American alumni tradition.

“Commenting upon what he terms the ‘astounding success’ of these alumni campaigns for increased endowment, a writer in the Boston Transcript raises the question whether this experience will not inevitably result in calling the alumni to a greater and more direct participation in college government. For it is an ancient adage that those who pay the piper will eventually dominate college government everywhere. Their form committees, hold conventions, pass resolutions, and presently set themselves up as a factor to be reckoned with in all discussions of college policy. Does this mean that alumni opinion will eventually dominate college government everywhere? The signs are pointing that way.

In connection with the recent political ousting of Secretary A. M. Brown and the subsequent reporting of the news of A GROSS INJUSTICE perpetrated an injustice of the rankest sort. It is an injustice—a piece of business—that alumni must resent and will not permit to go unchallenged, no matter whether they believed in Secretary Brown’s retention or whether they felt as doubtless many did, that the secretarieship of the college should be in the hands of a younger man, possibly one less conservative. Since no charges were made to Mr. Brown at the time of his dismissal, it appeared necessary to someone that reasons for his dismissal should be made, and one was promptly made, and printed in papers in the state, intimating that there had been irregularities in the handling of his office. To our mind this was the grossest type of maligning that has ever been handed out to any man either in politics or out, who has served M. A. C. as faithfully and as honestly as has Secretary Brown during the twenty-five years he has held the position. Whatever has been said or thought of Mr. Brown’s policies or his influence in directing the affairs of the college his integrity is unquestioned and the conduct of his office just as much above question, and to attempt to besmirch his record is one of the lowest of conspiracies.

During the football season just passed the games have been reported and the athletic news furnished for the Record THANKING by James H. Hasselman, former JIMMIE merly of the English department and now director of publicity for the college. To hundreds of alumni he is popularly known as “Jimmie”. We are taking this occasion to tell Record readers of the splendid assistance which Mr. Hasselman has given and to extend to him the thanks and appreciation of alumni, for his help has come at a time when such help was sorely needed.

Mr. Hasselman continues to write the material for the athletic pages. An all-around athlete, a keen judge of athletes and the game itself, whatever it may be, as well as a capable news analyst and writer, the Record feels itself fortunate indeed to be able to have this very material assistance from Mr. Hasselman.

Howard R. Smith '95 Doing Effective Work for Live Stock Industry.

A recent bovine tuberculosis cleanup in Hillsdale county brought Howard R. Smith '95 up into the Michigan limelight and before he has an opportunity to slip back into the smoky hazes of his Chicago Stock Yards office it would be our aim to keep the spotlight on him a bit longer for the special benefit of M. A. C. people. For Howard Smith has a record in which all M. A. C. may take pride.

Five years ago when the Chicago Live Stock Exchange, the Union Stock Yards Company and the packers subscribed a fund for the purpose of organizing a nation-wide campaign to eradicate tuberculosis in live stock, there was just one man, outstanding, whom they recognized as big enough for the job and they invited him to take charge of the work. He was Howard R. Smith, of course. The fact that previous to his selection for this particular job he had had charge of a campaign to promote the live stock industry in the northwest for James J. Hill of railroad fame, one of the greatest organizers and judges of men's ability that this country has ever known, didn't detract from his qualifications in any respect.

At the annual convention of the National Live Stock Exchange held in Cleveland, Ohio, last June Mr. Smith was appointed live stock commissioner for the national organization and he now has supervision of tuberculosis eradication work at all the principal markets. The National Exchange is an association of all live stock exchanges in the United States. Much of his time is now devoted to educational work on tuberculosis for the purpose of seeking adequate federal and state appropriations promoting county participation in area testing and tracing diseased shipments back to the farmer. Tuberculosis is causing a greater annual loss to the live stock industry of the United States than all other diseases combined.

Records from the office of the United States division of meat inspection show that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, of a total of over 8,000,000 cattle slaughtered under inspection 183,000 or 2.2% were returned and condemned for tuberculosis. The ravages in other stock is just as serious, and the job of eradicating this serious menace to the live stock industry is admitted everywhere to be one of the biggest. This was a fact that the National Exchange recognized when they selected Howard R. Smith to head this organization for them.

Speaking of the work of the national exchanges in eradicating tuberculosis Doctor J. R. Mohler, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington, comments upon Mr. Smith's work in this fashion. "The splendid co-operation that has been given to the tuberculosis eradication work since its inception by the Chicago Live Stock Exchange is fully appreciated and it has been productive of the most excellent results; in fact, a large part of the success of the work is due to the vigorous campaign which has been conducted by Professor Howard R. Smith, live stock commissioner, formerly representing the Chicago Live Stock Exchange, and now being the representative of the national association."

As a little sidelight on Professor Smith the following is taken from an editorial appearing in a Hillsdale County paper following the tuberculosis eradication campaign there: "It should be further noted here that the gentleman primarily responsible for the cleanup in Hillsdale was H. R. Smith, live stock commissioner for the National Live Stock Exchange. He started the ball rolling and kept it rolling till the job was done. Prof. Smith's farm home is in Hillsdale county and he grew up among the people there. As he puts it: 'Here I was talking tuberculosis eradication and it occurred to me that I ought to start right at home to show that I really meant it. The local people, as well as the state and federal authorities were very generous in their co-operation, and the results have been very successful.' What has been done in Hillsdale will no doubt be done in an ever-increasing number of cattle producing counties."

Following graduation from M. A. C. Mr.
Smith took the position of professor of animal husbandry at Tilford Collegiate Academy at Vinton, la. Two years later he became professor of chemistry at Rock Island, Illinois. Following this connection he went to the University of Missouri and became professor of animal husbandry there, later accepting the same position and head of the department at the University of Nebraska. While there he published the book, "Profitable Stock Feeding," which has been used very extensively as a textbook.

In a recent letter to Doctor Beal, Mr. Smith says, "I had occasion to attend a meeting of the Michigan Milk Producers Association held at Agricultural College Campus, East Lansing, Michigan, last month. I had, with me on this trip, a distant relative of yours, Milton Knowles from Rollin, Michigan, who has recently assumed the management of my farm in Hillsdale county. As we walked by the Botanic Gardens I recalled the early days when you formulated the plans which resulted in this beautiful garden. I told Mr. Knowles of the time when you and I occupied the same room at a convention in Washington and I sincerely hope that we can be brought together in the near future so that we can talk about old times."

"You probably read that your former home is to be converted into the new president's mansion. Apparently it has been decided by the members of the Board of Agriculture to have President Friday surrounded by the very best traditions.

Michigan to Have War Memorial in Union.

Three University of Michigan organizations, the University branch of the American Legion, Richard Neville Hall post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Gun and Bludgeon Club, an organization of federal board men, have pledged themselves to earn $15,000 to complete and furnish the Upper Reading Room in the Michigan Union, and when it is completed and furnished, to dedicate the room to the Michigan men who gave their lives in the last war.

Harold A. Furlong '18, president of the Washtenaw County M. A. C. Association and at present a medical student at the University has a prominent place on the Union committee selected to carry on the project.

For three years that upper reading room has stood grey and gaunt, with but a rough finish to the walls, the woodwork of the room conspicuous by its absence, a yawning and half completed fireplace in one end of the room lending the last note of desolation. Across one end of the room there has been strung a banner announcing that $15,000 would complete the room, and furnish it to correspond to the other rooms in the building.

The means decided upon by this committee of extracting the $15,000 has nothing to do with a "drive," which is becoming the last word in raising money on the campus, but they propose to give every donor something for his money beside simply a feeling of having done his duty. It is their purpose to earn the money by entertaining the campus at various times throughout the year—a series of entertainment being given.

Missouri Breaks Ground for Memorial Union.

Homecoming Day at the University of Missouri, Saturday, November 12, 1921, was made memorable by the breaking of ground and designation of the site for the great Memorial Tower and the great Student Union Building. The Homecoming parade had this site as its goal, and here students, old grads, and citizens gathered to witness one of the most important events which has even occurred at the University.

Many distinguished visitors were present among them being General Omar Bundy who wrote one of the famous messages of the war, Colonel John A. Parker, Major A. Lejuene of the Marine Corps, and Governor David R. Francis.

The University of Missouri is one of the first of the middle western colleges to break ground for their Memorial Union Building although a dozen or more institutions are planning or actually making campaigns for such structures as memorials to their war heroes.

President M. L. Burton of Ann Arbor, and Dr. Carolyn Hedger of Chicago, are two of the prominent speakers to be heard at M. A. C. during Farmers' Week Jan. 30 to Feb. 3. Other men of national reputation, who have been invited to address the meetings, are Ambassador Sir Auckland Geddes from Great Britain; Secretary of Agriculture, Henry Wallace; Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas; and our own Michigan Congressman, Pat Kelly.

Prof. W. B. Barrows, head of the Zoology department, was in Philadelphia between Nov. 7 and 11 attending the annual meeting of the American Ornithologists Union. Mr. Barrows has the distinction of being the only Fellow of this organization in the state of Michigan, this being the highest attainable rank in the society. Besides about 50 carefully chosen Fellows, the American Ornithologists Union has several hundred Members elected for their ability and many more associates, it being the only national organization of its kind in the country. At the annual meeting, all phases of bird work were discussed, and a whole session was given to moving pictures of birds in their native homes, showing how valuable the camera may be in getting facts about bird life. The annual meetings have always been held in one of the larger eastern cities in the past, but the one next November is to be held in Chicago.
Reminiscences of the Old Days and Prof.
Amherst, Massachusetts
November 26, 1921.

Charles E. Thorne '69, of Wooster, Ohio, has been director of the State Agricultural Experiment Station for thirty-three years, and has just been relieved of the management of the station, but is continuing his experiments. He has about $300,000 a year and expenses, and employs a force of two hundred people to help him. It is considered one of the very best experiment stations in the country. I just complimented him for his patience and skill for so long time, and he writes me the following:

He has given M. A. C. the credit of giving him a start in agriculture, which he has liked so much.

It is very seldom that we run across a note concerning M. A. C. that brings in so many of the old professors and students.

—W. J. Beal.

You have my heartfelt thanks for your kind note of the 15th. You ask about my experience at the Michigan Agricultural College: In the summer of 1866 my special schoolboy "chum," who was already there, persuaded me to go there. I was examined for admission by the kindest of examiners—Professor Fairchild. I undertook the study of botany under Professor Prentiss, of animal physiology under Dr. Miles, and of geology under Professor Clute, who had been assigned that subject in the absence of its regular teacher. He did not succeed in making it interesting to me, and I have always regretted that I could not have gotten into Dr. Kedzie's class. Dr. Miles was a splendid teacher—when we could get him—and trying to mow some tough meadow grass on the lawn with a dull scythe, under a class of one in the fundamentals of agricultural chemistry and physics, and was a most excellent teacher.

I spent only three terms at Antioch, however. For reasons which seemed sufficient I gave up my dream of becoming a teacher of agriculture and went to Kansas as a farmer. A rainless summer sent me back to Ohio, where I tried to make a start on a little farm. Two summers of endless rain destroyed the crops on my farm, and with a heavy debt I applied for and was appointed to the position of foreman on the farm of the Ohio State University, of which Professor Orton was then the President, my intention being to take up again the broken thread of my plan to teach agriculture. In this I was encouraged by Dr. Orton and Dr. Norton S. Townsend, who gave me many an evening of his time in helpful suggestions along the line of my proposed work.

In 1881 I was called to the associate editorship of Farm and Fireside, which had been started a few years before in Springfield, and when the Hatch Act was passed I was offered the directorship of the Ohio Station.

One of my very pleasant recollections of the Michigan College is of going there for a brief visit and being taken charge of by Professor Beal, to whom I was then an entire stranger, and being most hospitably entertained in his home, and one of my prized possessions is a picture of a group, taken in front of the Shoreham, with Dr. Beal in the front row and including both the Tracys and numerous later friends.

THROUGH AN OVERSIGHT the name of Mary Emily Ranney '22, of Greenville, daughter of E. W. Ranney '90, and Mrs. Tressie Bristol Ranney '90, was omitted from the list of those senior girls pledged to Omicron Nu, honorary home economics sorority which was printed on page five in the November 18 number of the Record. While this is Miss Ranney's third year at M. A. C., she is a full-fledged senior completing the regular course in three years.
Notre Dame Heavy Winner, Thanksgiving.

Outplayed by Notre Dame's "wonder" eleven, the varsity went down to defeat at South Bend on Thanksgiving Day by the score of 48 to 0. The Irishmen opened up with everything they had, their offensive including accurate forward passing, smashing line plays, and speedy end runs. The result was disastrous from an Aggie point of view, the fact that they were going down before one of the greatest teams of a decade being but small comfort for the varsity.

The scoring was evenly distributed, two touchdowns being checked up in each of the first three periods and one in the fourth. M. A. C. never seriously threatened to score, although the backs were able to puncture Notre Dame's line for occasional gains.

Captain John Bos, playing his last game for the Green and White, put up a great defensive battle, while Johnson and Brady performed well in the backfield.

Notre Dame showed eleven stars in her opening line-up, and about a dozen equally proficient players went in later as substitutes.

"Notre Dame, as she played today, is the greatest team I have ever seen," said Coach Barron after the game. "I believe Rockne's men could have defeated any team in the country today."

Benefit Contest Nets Good Sum.

The Varsity Club benefit game played Thanksgiving Day between the M. A. C. All-Fresh and Lansing High School resulted in a 21 to 0 victory for Killorair's yearlings, who were never pushed at any time during the play. The husky freshmen were too strong for the high school boys and could, apparently, have run up a considerably larger score.

The game is reported as an all-around success, from the "benefit" point of view, as well as that of the game itself. A large crowd of Lansing and college people turned out.

Football Schedules in the Making.

Director C. L. Brewer and Bert Barron, football coach, are attending the Western Conference "schedule" meeting in Chicago this week-end. Representatives from all the teams of the conference, as well as other leading western colleges and universities, gather at the annual meeting to arrange schedules for the coming year and discuss various problems of intercollegiate athletics.

While no definite announcement has been made, it is understood that an effort will be made to arrange a more representative schedule for 1922 than has been possible in recent years. Increased athletic tax paid by undergraduates this year makes it possible to bring stronger teams to East Lansing. At the same time, the splendid showing made by this year's Fresh eleven points to stronger material with which to work next fall, and makes the listing of larger colleges practicable.

At least one other Western Conference school besides Michigan, and one or more important intersectional games are reported to be in prospect.

M. A. C. Harriers Win from Notre Dame.

Michigan Agricultural College cross country men scored another decisive victory over Notre Dame harriers Thanksgiving afternoon in the annual dual run held in connection with the M. A. C.-Notre Dame football game.

Captain Thurston finished first for the Green and White with Adolph a second. Brendel and Hinson were third and fourth respectively, and Nesman finished the team scoring by finishing in sixth place. Had Nesman finished fifth it would have been a second straight clean walkaway for the Green and White.

Time for the course which was laid out over 3 3-4 miles of sticky territory, was 19 minutes, 20 1-5 seconds.

Johnson Elected Captain.

W. C. Johnson '23, was elected captain of the 1922 football team at a meeting of this year's monogram winner's held last Wednesday noon. Johnson, who comes from Newberry, Michigan, has played two years of varsity ball, alternating at end and halfback. He has done practically all the punting for the team during the past two seasons, and has proved one of the most dependable ground gainer and defensive players. He is a member of the Olympic Society.

Fourteen monograms, including one managerial award, were made at the close of the football season. Injuries prevented two or three other men of varsity caliber from competing in sufficient games to win the coveted letters.

Interclass Swimming Starts.

Intra-mural athletics at Michigan Agricultural College will be started Friday night, when the inter-class swimming meet will be staged.
The Gymnasium, One Michigan Plant That Doesn’t Feel the Industrial Depression.

With the termination of the football season and the undertaking of indoor sports, the Gymnasium is working both day and night shifts.

in the East Lansing tank. The aquatic carnival will be the opening event of a series of inter-class and inter-fraternity swimming meets, indoor track meets, and basketball games which are scheduled for the winter months.

In the opening swimming meet, the prescribed seven events laid down by Western Conference regulations, together with a relay race, will make up the program. The events are diving, four prescribed and three optional; plunge for distance; 50-yard back stroke; 50-yard breast stroke; 50-yard free style; 100-yard free style; 220-yard free style.

Relay teams for each class are being picked by Coach S. F. Flynn, who will later select a varsity squad from among the men who compete in intra-mural tank meets. In all other events, entry will be open to any member of the competing classes.

Arrangements are being made to accommodate spectators at this and later meets, and it is expected that by the time the varsity squad goes into action against Michigan here February 18, interest in the tank sport will have become great enough to assure a big attendance.

The second event of the intra-mural program will be the inter-fraternity swimming event, scheduled to be staged a week from Friday night.

Indoor Track Starts Under Barron.

Indoor track activities for the 1921-22 season were officially opened last Wednesday at a general meeting of all candidates for the Varsity and All-Fresh teams. While no meets will be held until after the holidays, a large number of men have already started work on the Gymnasium track.

Bert Barron, who is to serve as varsity track coach for both outdoor and indoor seasons, took over the squad immediately after the close of the football season and will devote full time to track activities.

A complete list of indoor meets has been lined up by Director Brewer for January, February and March. Opening with an Inter-society meet on January 13, track candidates will engage on succeeding Saturdays in an Interclass meet, a Fresh-Soph Dual meet, two collegiate dual meets, the Annual State Indoor meet, and the Track Carnival. All will be held at home.

While available material left from last year’s team is not numerically great, several unusually fast men are included in the group of veterans around whom Barron will build his team. Captain Ernst, holder of every M. A. C. indoor record up to the quarter mile, and unbeaten indoors last year, will lead the sprinters for the third year. Ernst is one of the fastest men in the middle west and should have a great season.

Michigan Agricultural College placed 17 men out of 21 teams entered in the college students’ judging contest at the International Livestock Show, which opened in the union stock yards in Chicago last Saturday. The show closes Dec. 3. M. A. C. placed eighth in sheep judging; 13, hog; 14, horses; and 20, cattle. L. E. Johnson ’22, of Sumner, placed 24th; G. E. Tichenor ’22, of Dowagiac, 27th, out of 105 men in individual judging. Prof. G. A. Brown ’07, head of the animal husbandry department at M. A. C., coached the team and handled entries from the college. This is the first time in the last 15 years that M. A. C. has sent out a student judging team in the international competitive work.
Foreign Missionaries! What News?

The Student Volunteer Band of the College, organized last year, is seeking information concerning the missionaries among former students of M. A. C. who are actively engaged in work in the foreign field or who are planning to enter the field within a short time. Such information forms a vital part in the exhibits during the Student Volunteer Conference held in the state each year. So, in order that M. A. C. may have an exhibit this year of the best quality, may the Band have some news from missionaries themselves or from their friends? The Record will likewise be glad to receive this material, as it will be of interest to Record readers as well as to the Band. Let's have it, please.

The Name Question

A Column for Open Discussion

The question of changing the name of Michigan Agricultural College to make it more representative of its manifold branches of instruction is one which is continually raised, and is a source of constant irritation to graduates of courses other than agriculture. To many engineering graduates it is nothing short of a festering sore.

Almost ten years ago graduates and students of the engineering course together with many followers from the other courses organized themselves for the purpose of making a change in the name of the college to Michigan State College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts, or a similar name which would be shorted into "Michigan State," or "State College" as so many similar institutions are known. Such a name, they maintained, would be an asset and not a hindrance to them when they went out into the world seeking positions. It is reported that their efforts failed at that time because of the fact that an appropriation bill was before the legislature and it was felt that such an attempt would jeopardize the chance of the college securing the pending appropriations. So temporarily the whole matter was dropped, but it was settled by a "long ways.

Within the past year the matter has been agitated considerably. Many letters have been penned both by men of the agricultural and engineering divisions. It is rapidly assuming concrete advantage gained by so doing. You confess that I get rather tired of hearing because I took little note of them. However, I can see the use-fulness of discussing this phase of the matter, because it seems impossible for any party to see this phase of it except the Engineers, or members of some other course than the Agricultural Course, or courses closely allied to the Agricultural Course. I have also tried going to a few of the U. P. M. A. C. Association meetings, but have found only Agricultural Agents present, except for one or two instances when some of the Engineers of our Department were present, and I must confess that I get rather tired of hearing nothing but "Ags" this, and "Aggie" that.

This question of the name should be settled once and for all. If an injustice is being done or if old traditions are at stake it should be threshed out pro and con here in the columns of the Record, the only place we have open for such alumni discussions. After a thorough consideration and discussion here it is hoped that, as was the case of the national fraternity question so generously discussed in these columns a year ago, sentiment may be crystallized and with one mind the alumni organization may either make their wants known to the State Board of Agriculture and the next Michigan legislature or forever after close the discussion.

The season is now open for a fair discussion and the time is right. If you have thoughts or sentiments on this question let's have them.—The Editor.

There is just one way in which you can realize the advantages to be enjoyed through the use of Colgate’s “Handy Grip” Shaving Stick.

Try it, and you will know that it has made your shaving easier, more comfortable, than any other shaving soap you have ever used.

Notice, also, the convenience and economy that accompany the use of Colgate’s “Handy Grip” Shaving Stick.

Colgate’s Shaving Stick not only produces the most soothing lather for the average man, but it is a little more economical in use than powder, and much more economical than shaving cream. As we make all three, we can give you this impartial advice.

The metal "Handy Grip," containing a trial size stick of Colgate’s Shaving Soap, sent for $1.00. When the trial stick is used up you can buy the Colgate "Refill," threaded to fit this Grip. Thus you save on each "Refill" you buy. There are 50 shaves in a Colgate Shaving Stick— twice the number you can get from a tube of cream at the same price.
